PREFACE

This is not a grammar, nor a bible, nor a collection of arbitrary benoni rules - it is a systematization of the polychromatic ideas inside the Modern Benoni Complex - bringing things so far as 1.11.1972 + various games from the period 1.11.72-1.2.73.

This survey is intended to represent a synthesis of the material contained in the bibliography, p.4o2.

It is also an attempt to group a "family" of variations according to the conception of the local majorities as the commanding power in connection with a static construction of the center - as worked out by H.Kmoch in "Pawn Power in Chess" (9).

Evaluation of positions are "copied" from existing "authoritative" sources - if such exist. Otherwise the sign ø is normally used.

BENONI TALE

Rachel is dying in childbed.

Jakob: "He is son of the rightful - and his name shall be Ben-Jamin (Son of Joy)".

Rachel: "No - I know better.
Ben-Oni is the name of the new-born".

The name Ben-Oni was an allusion to the town On in Egypt, the town where Osiris reigned - Osiris,
Lord of the Dead.

And to the emotional mind Ben-Oni equalled
"Son of Death".

(With apologies to Thomas Mann:"Josef and his Brothers", 1933, and to the Old Testament).

"Whenever I felt in a sorrowful mood and wanted to take refuge from melancholy, I sat over a chessboard, for one or two hours according to circumstances. Thus this book came into being, and its name, Ben-Oni, "Son of Sadness", should indicate its origin".

(Part of Aaron Reinganum's preface in his "Ben-Oni, oder die Vertheidigungen gegen die Gambitzüge im Schache", Frankfurt am Main, 1825, as translated by Dr.E.Gelenczei in his "The Benoni Defence", BCM No.12, 1966).

Reinganum's own word is "Sohn meines Unmuth", which also might be translated to "Son of Sorrow".

DISCUSSION OF BENONI PAWN STRUCTURES

Few opening systems (complexes) show a distinct and mature pawn structure within the opening phase. Mature should be taken in the sense of "stabilized center". Mostly the pawn formations are immature during the greatest part of the middle game, and in some opening systems the structure is fluctuating even in the endgame.

An earmark of MBO is that the center is stabilized within c. 5 moves (apart from transpositional sequences from various Indian Lines and Flank Openings), and this stabilization is due to the creation of the specific pawn couple d5 v. d6, giving the center a static nature.

In many hand-books on chess you may read that "the days are gone when general principles on development and pawn play are sufficient arsenal for the tournament player".
Any opening system has its own inherent "logic", i.e. a basic pattern for planning, and only an intimate knowledge of this logic enables a player to formulate the correct plan.

In his excellent book "Pawn Power in Chess" (9) Hans Kmoch has given a scheme for distinguishing between the different benoni formations:

1) Full Benoni

Major	:	c4+d5+e4	v.	c5+d6+e5
Minor	:	c2+d5+e4	v.	c5+d6+e5
Spanish	:	c3+d5+e4	v.	a6+b5+c5+d6+e5

2) Part Benoni

Blitz	:	d5+e4	v.	c5+d6	(MBO)!!
Wing	:	c4+d5	v.	c5+d6+e7
Gambit	:a2+b2+	+d5+e4	v.	c5+d6+e7
Rex	:	d5	v.	c7+d6+e5

It would be convenient to have all benoni games classified in accordance with this scheme. Retrieval of information on a specific structure would be much easier.

The "Benoni Major" and the "Benoni Minor" differ by the square c4 which in the latter formation is open offering White's pieces more scope (see Nimzowitzsch Piroutte, p.96). Therefore, Black usually avoids the "Benoni Minor" (1.d4 c5 2.d5) playing c5 only in answer to c4. Thus 1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5.
The "Spanish Benoni" is a version of the "Benoni Minor" improved on Black's part through control of the square c5.
The "Blitz Benoni" is a half-closed formation with sharp tendencies owing to opposite majorities (The remainder of this book is dedicated to these majorities).
The "Wing Benoni" is designed to put White's Q-wing under converging pressure. Black therefore fianchettoes his K-Bishop and strives for the exchange of a pawn with b5.
The "Gambit Benoni", where Black sacrifices a pawn with b5, constitutes an effort on his part to intensify the tendencies of the "Wing Benoni".
The "Rex Benoni" differs from all other benoni formations by c7 (instead of c5). It is the most important of the part benonis.
Our term "Rex" is intended to hint at the King's Indian Defence from which this formation usually arises.

All benoni formations favour White with regard to space, but Black with regard to levers (see p.ix).
White, who should strive for a duo with his d-pawn, has difficulty in forming proper levers, while Black constantly faces the danger of being either too early or too late with the exchange of a pawn. The struggle is usually very difficult for both sides.

Benoni formations, because of their intricacy and permanent tension, are the heavy guns in present-day tournament chess.

Any benoni formation may conceivably occur with colours reversed.

So far Hans Kmoch.

By now it should be clear that the subject of this study is the "Blitz Benoni Formation", normally referred to as the "Modern Ben-Oni" - MBO.
The standard term "Modern" is based on a sort of ignorance: Reinganum's original idea was to answer 1.d4 with 1...c5. Formations springing from these moves might therefore be called "Old Benoni" or "Classical Benoni" formations. Only later - in this century - it became fashionable to play c5 only in reaction to c4 (cf. Kmoch). Formations, encompassing the structure c4+d5 v. c5+d6 should therefore be called "Modern Benoni" formations. But the formation subjected to analysis in this study is only part of the "Modern Benoni" complex. So the actual structure should be given its own name, e.g. "Blitz Benoni" (Kmoch) or "Skew Benoni" (Zeuthen).
Finally it should be mentioned that Euwe (7) calls it "Tal-System", Pachman (8) calls it "Verbesserte Hromadka-System", the Russians (5,10,11,13) call all benoni formations "Staroindiskaja Zaschita" (which means "Old Indian Defence"), the English call it "Modern Benoni" etc.
Now - to make confusion complete - "Skew Benoni" is suggested.

MODERN BENONI EXPRESSIONS

1) The pawn couple d5 v. d6 forms the "Benoni Ram", in short the RAM.

2) The pawn couple d5+e5 forms White's "Main Duo" (or "Head Duo").

3) The pawn couple b5+c5 forms Black's "Main Duo" (or "Head Duo"). Here "Duo" means the same as "Phalanx".

4) The square e5 is called "Stopsquare for White's Benoni Majority", in short WSS (White Stop Square).

5) The square b5 is called "Stopsquare for Black's Benoni Majority", in short BSS (Black Stop Square).

6) The square c4 is called "Modern Benoni Square", in short MBS.

7) The diagonal a1-h8 is called "Modern Benoni Diagonal", in short MBD.

8) "Monochromy" is a desease. Monochromy utters itself in two ways:
   a) "Melanpenia", meaning insufficient control of the black squares.
   b) "Leucopenia", meaning insufficient control of the white squares.
   This desease may be mechanical or dynamical, i.e. of lasting nature or of temporary nature. It is easily understood that mechanical monochromy is much more serious than dynamical monochromy.

9) "Melan-sacrifice", a sacrifice intended to inflict "Melanpenia" in the opponent's camp.

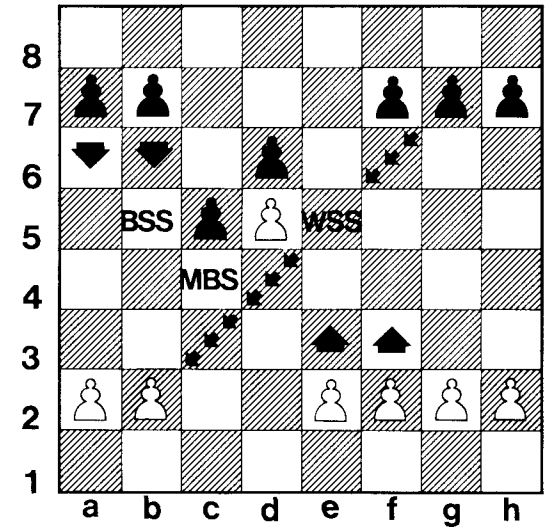
10) "Leuco-sacrifice", a sacrifice intended to inflict "Leucopenia" in the opponent's camp.

11) "Rotochromy", a virtue. Rotochromy means the ability of attacking squares of different colour. A Bishop is born monochrome, a Night is born rotochrome.

12) "Sealer-Sweeper". A "Sealer" is an immobilized pawn, which only hampers its own pieces. A dynamically immobilized pawn may self-sacrificially advance, thus vacating its square for the benefit of its pieces. We then call it a "Sweeper" (cf.Kmoch, 9).
In the "Sealing-Sweeping Line" (2S-Line), p.198, White's e-pawn acts as a sweeper, justifying the latter half of the name, while Black's d-pawn acts as a sealer. That is, the elements of sealing and sweeping are often parts of the same action, for if the sacrificed pawn is captured by a pawn, the latter often seals off a square to the detriment of its own pieces.
In the "Sealing-Sweeping Line" the e-file and the a1-h8 diagonal are sealed off.

DISCUSSION OF MBO-STRUCTURE

The outstanding feature of the MBO pawn formation is the existence of local majorities.
White has 4 pawns against 3 on the K-side, while Black has 4 pawns against 3 on the Q-side. Utilization of these majorities constitutes the basic aim for both players.
The ram acts as a dead-point in the center and as an axis for pawn operations. Mostly White strives to dissolve this axis - the ram - in order to exploit his advantage in in space in the center, i.e. to make the d-pawn mobile.



The manoeuver e2-e4-e5 establishes White's main-duo and activates his majority. Normally the head-duo becomes feasible only after the preparatory f2-f4, and thus White's f-pawn acts as a helper. Black's f-pawn could be placed at f6 in order to frustrate e4-e5. In practical play this is only seldom seen (emergency cases) owing to the resulting weakness of Black's K-wing. Exchange of f7 v. f2 creates plain backwardness of White's e-pawn and should normally be avoided by White. Exchange of d6 v. f2 would give White a crushing pawn-roller (main-duo) and should normally be allowed only in such cases where White will find it extremely ardous to maintain the duo-structure in the center (see e.g. Four Pawns Attack).
The manoeuver b7-b5 establishes Black's main-duo and activates his majority. Normally the head-duo becomes feasible only after the preparatory a7-a6, and thus Black's a-pawn acts as a helper. In answer to a7-a6 White almost automatically plays a2-a4, thus increasing control of MBS and BSS, but simultaneously a hole (pocket) appears at b4.

Exchange of White's a-pawn v. Black's b-pawn creates plain backwardness of White's b-pawn and Black's a-pawn. An important consequence of this exchange is the creation of a focal point at b2 (intersection between b-file and MBD). This focal point has often been a source of constant worry for White.

The square c4 (MBS) has a special significance in MBO. White is able to plant a Night there through the Nimzowitzsch Pirouette (Ngl-f3-d2-c4). This Night will exert pressure against d6 (ram-pawn) and also control e5 (WSS), thus supporting the establishing of White's main-duo (d5+e5).

So the struggle in the MBO-complex is broken down to a question of controlling WSS,BSS, and MBS (e5,b5, and c4) in order to mobilize respective majorities.
The struggle takes an anti-clock-wise movement, cf.diagram.

SIGNS AND SYMBOLS

1 Pieces:

K =
Q =
B =
N =
R =

2 Signs of evaluation of position:

+- (-+) :White (Black) is clearly on top.
+= (=+) :White (Black) is supposed to enjoy a slight initiative.
= :The position is supposed to be in equilibrium.
ø :Unclear position. Evaluation a question of style.
ø= (=ø) :White (Black) is supposed to have compensation for his deficit in material.

3 Games (examples):

In "Section of Theory" the examples are given as follows:

(NAME-NAME, Tournament, Year. Result - No. in "Section of Games"), e.g: (TUKMAKOV-TAL, 39.USSR Ch., 1971. B - 663).

where B = "Black won", W = "White won", and D = "Drawn".
If no No. is given, then the total game cannot be found in "Section of Games".
NB!: All signs for "check" and taking of pieces are omitted in text.

4 Diagrams:

In principle diagrams are given whenever a "choice" exists (choice according to current theory).
Bold numbers on right-hand pages in "Section of Theory" refer to diagrams on the corresponding left-hand page.
W↔B on diagrams indicates "White to move" or "Black to move".

5 Abbreviations:

ø : Intending to, in order to, with the idea, if ... then ... etc.
→ : Transposes to, leads to, etc.
Ch. : Championship.
Corr. : Correspondence.
(No.) : Refer to number in bibliography, p.4o2.

MODERN BENONI SYSTEMS

The main features of the modern benoni formation are the local majorities, the ram, the benoni square c4 (MBS),and the respective stopsquares (e5=WSS, b5=BSS).
In accordance with Kmoch's remarks (p.iv) White(the attacker) should strive for the dissolution of the ram by means of the duo-lever action e2-e4-e5 (lever = load and tension).
It should be mentioned, however, that the dissolution (disintegration) of the ram not necessarily is good for White. The question is of course at what price the dissolution is obtained.

The various systems at White's disposal may now be distinguished as follows:

A: PAWN STORM SYSTEMS

White tries to dissolve the ram immediately by means of the duo-lever e2-e4-e5, prepared by the helper f2-f4.
The struggle normally takes a purely tactical direction - heavy positional manoeuvering is abandoned.

Chapter I : Mikenas Line (Mikenas Gambit) p.8
- II : Taimanov Line p.18
- III: Four Pawns Attack p.38

B: PIECE PRESSURE SYSTEMS

White brings piece pressure to bear against d6, striving to tie Black down in a passive, defensive position. After that the duo-lever manoeuver is carried out.
The struggle normally takes a tactical-positional direction.

Chapter IV : Nimzowitzsch Pirouette p.96
- V : Combined Lines p.114

C: DELAYED SYSTEMS

White's main concern is to maintain his mighty (=vulnerable) pawn structure in the center (especially through over-protection of e4) and to prevent Black from establishing his main duo.
The main breaks (duo-lever actions) are normally postponed until mobilization is completed.
The struggle normally takes a positional direction.

Chapter VI : Fianchetto Line p.142
- VII: Sealing-Sweeping Line (2S-Line) p.198
- VIII: Uhlmann-Averbakh Line p.222
- IX : Solid Line p.292

It is typical of present-day chess practice, that C-systems are prevailing.
No doubt, A-systems need further investigation, and the material contained in the present survey should provide the background for additional study.

MIKENAS LINE

See diagram no.11

This is the most direct attempt to take advantage of the pawn structure.
In a way Black's position looks critical, but he has sufficient counterplay owing to his better development.

The thrust 8.e5 was introduced and analysed by the Lithuanian Master Mikenas around 196o, but it has never gained real popularity. Somehow this is strange since White's chances in this line in no way seem inferior to those in other lines inside the "Pawn Storm System". The lack of popularity also accounts for the lack of documentary material. The psychological explanation might be that players who open with 1.d4 dislike the "Wild West" positions arising from this direct push in the center.
"If anything, theory favours Black, while practice shows White to be more successful" (1).

After 8.e5 Black has 2 basic possibilities:

A: 8...de (Close to suicide, since the center is blown away at a moment when Black's pieces are awkwardly placed).
B: 8...Nfd7 (Salvation), p.12.

Generally acknowledged as the best choice. Black avoids the total liquidation of the center.

9. Nb5!? .....

The idea behind White's previous move.
Black cannot defend d6 - his ram pawn - in any satisfactory way. Judging, however, from the examples given below Black need not be frightened from the N's sally. It consumes time.
Alternatives (from dia.no.21):
1) 9.ed is not dangerous, viz: 9...o-o lo.Nf3 (22):
   a) lo...Nf6 (23):

   b) lo...a6 11.Be2 Nf6 12.Ne5 (MIKENAS-MIKKOV, Pjarnü, 1956) with equality (SB 1958).
2) 9.Ne4 is actually the same as the text move, since it transposes after the logical sequence 9...de lo.Nd6.
3) 9.e6 (24). This obvious move is treated neither by Hartston (1), nor by Boleslavskij (6), nor by Euwe (7). This is odd since the thrust demands extremely exact play on Black's part. Only Judovich (5) mentions the possibility. Some examples:
   a) 9...fe lo.de (25):
      a1) lo...Nf6 11.Bc4 Nc6 12.Nf3 a6 13.Ng5 Qe7 14.o-o o-o 15. f5 Ne5 16.Nd5! += (NEIKIRCH-GOLZ, DDR Ch., 1963. W - 12). Black was crushed on the K-side.
      a2) lo...Nb6 is best, according to Judovich. His opinion is based on MILEIKA-ELKON (Riga, 1959): 11.Ne4 o-o 12.Qd6 Qd6 13.Nd6 Be6 14.Nb7 Na4 15.Nf3 Nd7 16.Bb5 Nb2 17.Rb1 Rb8 =
   b) 9...Nf6 lo.Bb5 Kf8 (26):

If Black gets nervous he will be slaughtered. It is necessary to force the intruder to take a decision immediately.
Tucking the K away on the first rank creates a traffic-jam in Black's camp, viz: (from dia.no. 27)

White's pair of Bishops and passed d-pawn should be ample compensation for his slight deficit, but Black has counterplay, e.g.: 16...Nf3 17.Bf3 Bd4 18.Khl Kg7 19.Bd5 (37):

1) 19...f6? 2o.Qb3 Rb8 21.Be6 Qd8 22.Bf4 Ne5? (22...Be5) 23.Qd5 Rf8 24.Radl Qb6 25.Rd4!, and White's central play grew too strong (ZILBERBERG-TANIN, corr., 1967. W - 2o).
2) 19...Rf8 2o.Bf4 Qd8 21.Qb3 g5 22.Bg3 Qb6 23.Qf3 f5 24.Rael f4 ø (GIPSLIS-L.GRIGORJAN, 1/2 32.USSR Ch., 1964. D - 21). The position clarified into a roughly balanced 2R-ending.

Albeit Black normally emerges from the gun smoke in the opening phase with a pawn to the good he must be on the alert to hold his own. In his camp discord is not far away, and a single slip enables White to penetrate.
Mikenas Line deserves further tests and provides a good weapon in the hands of an experienced attacking player.
The extremely tactical tendency of this line should be noticed. No other line inside the MBO-complex displays the equivalent lack of heavy positional manoeuvering.

TAIMANOV LINE

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.e4 g6 7.f4 Bg7 8.Bb5

See diagram no.38

One of the most popular lines for White inside the "Pawn Storm System".
The basic idea is to create discord in Black's camp, i.e. to render Black's normal development difficult, and then transpose to patterns from the "Four Pawns Attack".
This line demands exact play on Black's part lest he will find himself in dire straits when the center is opened by the duo-lever e5.

Probably Black has only one satisfactory answer to the unpleasent Bishop check (8...Nfd7), although the rigorous dismissal of the alternatives was recently subjected to criticism by Ojanen and Keres (see alt.2 below).

8. ..... Nfd7 (39)

The crucial alternatives are (from dia.no.38):
1) 8...Bd7?! 9.e5! Nh5 lo.Nf3 (40):
   a) lo...de 11.fe (41):

         a12) 12.o-o Bq4!. It is remarkable that this transposes to alt.2a, p.8 (Mikenas Line!).
      a2) 11...Bb5 12.Nb5 o-o 13.o-o Qd7 14.Nc3 (14.Qe2!) 14...Qf5 15.Qa4 Be5 16.Ne5 Qe5 17.Bh6 += (O'KELLY-DIEZ=DEL=CORRAL, Madrid, 1957. W - 23). White had K-side pressure all the way, with Black suffering from melanpenia.

2) 8...Nbd7 (44). This loses a piece for Black. However, an article by Keres (SA, April 1971) indicates that there still are a lot of finesses to be found in variations dismissed by the theoreticians.
   A summary of Keres' article is given in Appendix I, p.368.
   In return for the piece, Black gets a substantial lead in development.

a3) 12.Be3 Re8 13.Ng5 b4 14.Na4 Nf6 15.e5 Nd5 16.Bg6!? ø (LOMBARD-NIEVERGELT, Swiss Ch., 1971. B - 36). Black got the upper hand in the center.

b) 11.Bd7 (Relatively best. Black is not allowed to gain space on the Q-side immediately) 11...Nd7 12.a4 Rb8 13.Qd3 Re8 14. Rel Qc7 15.Be3 Nf6 16.e5! += (PFEIFFER-BIALAS, BRD Ch., 1959. W - 37). Black's greediness on the Q-side lost the exchange.

3) 9.Be2 (56). Why not?
It is logical to keep the d-file clear in order to protect the d-pawn once the duo lever e5 has been carried out. Simultaneously Black's tactical advance c4 will not occur with gain of tempo as is the case in text (9.Bd3).
The only disadvantage of 9.Be2 in comparison with 9.Bd3 consists in the former's not protecting e4. But in this Taimanov Line the pressure against e4 is not imminent (because of 8...Nfd7). Hence White is able to manoeuver more freely.
An interesting idea for Black after 9.Be2 is 9...Qh4 lo.g3 Qe7, similar to Lutikov-Vasjukov above and Portisch's suggestion in "Combined Lines", p.128. See also alt.1 below.
No book on the MBO mentions the idea 9.Be2, so there is certainly scope for analysis.

9. ..... o-o (57)

The natural move - but probably not the strongest.
Less hackneyed tries are (from dia.no.45):

1) 9...Qh4!? (58). Probably a very good idea. Black inflicts leucopenia in White's K-flank.

a) lo.Kfl?! Na6 11.Nf3 Qd8 12.Kf2 Qb6 13.Kg3 ø (THOMSON-PORTISCH, Adelaide, USA, 1971. B - 38). According to Fridstein (SvSSSR 1971) White should not exchange Queens (Move no.16). The semi-open b-file gives Black fair chances.

12. Nd2 (77) .....

Starting the Nimzowitzsch Pirouette.
Alternatives (from dia.no.71):
1) 12.Qc2 Rb8 13.b3 b5 14.Bb2. According to Hartston an "insipid plan. In ALSTER-CLARKE (Wageningen, 1957. W - 61) Black now forced the game into a drawn ending with 14...c4 15.bc bc 16. Bc4 Nd5! 17.Bd5 Qb6 18.Rf2 Qb2 etc." But White has slightly better prospects due to the isolation of Black's ram pawn (d6). Black might fare better with more traditional moves.

Black's major fault consists in Nb8-a6-c7-b5-d4-b3-c1, i.e. a 6-tempi manoeuver to remove White's undeveloped QB. That must be too high a price to pay for inflicting melanpenia in White's lines.

In the position on diagram no.84 White will find it difficult to establish his main duo owing to the resulting weakness of his d-pawn (See comment p.22 , alt.3).
If Black has no desire of entering this type of "Four Pawns Attack" a tempo down he may try (from diagram no.83):
1) ll...Qa5? 12.Bd2 Qb6 13.a5 Qc7 +- (PIMONOV-JUDKEVICH, USSR, 1971. W - 68). Not to be recommended.

CHAPTER III
FOUR PAWNS ATTACK

See diagram no.89

This is the basic position for the "Four Pawns Attack". (Strictly speaking it should be called "Three Pawns Attack", but the word "Four" is firmly established in chess theory).

The main characteristics of the position are:
I) White is ready for the duo-lever e5, but normally postpones this break until mobilization is completed and the K tucked away.
II) Black is ahead in development and is ready for piling up pressure against White's vulnerable pawn structure in the center.
III) White's center deserves respect, but should arise no anxiety. People disliking positions of this type are advised to play a "Benoni Major" set-up (see p. iii).

In the basic position (dia.no. 89) Black has a choice between a galaxy of continuations, viz:

p.4o A: 9...Re8 (Ø prophylactic play in the e-file).

p.74 B: 9... b5 (Ø to establish the head duo, hoping to take advantage of the slightly precarious position of WK in the ensuing complications. The move also represents an attempt to shift the center of gravity to the Q-side).

p.82 C: 9...Bg4 (Ø to exchange the benoni N, lessening the force of the duo-lever e5).

p.86 D: 9... b6 (Ø to exchange the white-squared Bs, diminishing White's control of the diagonal f1-a6, in particular the squares c4 and b5).

p.88 E: 9...Na6 (Ø Na6-c7, i.e. to prepare for b5, simultaneously piling up pressure against d5 and rendering e5 more laborious to achieve).

p.9o F: 9...a6 (Ø to prepare for b5 and to prevent Nb5-sallies).

G: 9..Nbd7 is hardly advisable, eg: lo.e5! de 11.fe Ng4 12.e6 Nde5 13.Ng5 c4 14.o-o (14.Bg4 Nd3 15.Ke2 fe 16.Bf3 ed 17.Bd5 Kh8 18.Rf1 Bg4 19.Bf3 Bc3 -+, I.Zaitsev) 14...Qb6 15.Kh1 Nf2 16.Rf2 Qf2 17.Nge4 += (KNESEVIC-I.ZAITSEV, Smederevska Palanka, 1971. D - 75). Fireworks. A game full of tension and mutual faults.

Not all of the variations A-F are independent. Especially E and F have a tendency of transposing to patterns akin to A.

It should be mentioned that Hartston considers A24 in his "Benoni" (1), while A21+A22+A23 are treated in "King's Indian Defence" (2). Such division is hardly logical in as much as it should be the pawn skeleton to decide the positioning of the idea inside an opening complex (in casu "Indian Defence"), not an empirical classification.

An interesting try is (from dia.no. 94):
13.e5!? (Black's control of e5 seems insufficient!?) 13...de 14. Nc4 e4 15.Be3 Nd3! 16.Bd3 ed 17.Qd3 Bf5 18.Qd2 Rc8 ø (POMAR-TORAN, Palma de Mallorca, 1966. W - 79). (2) claims that Black had fine play. It is hard to see!

13.		Bh6!?

1) 13...Bd7 14.e5 de 15.fe Re5 16.Nc4 Re8 17.Bg5 h6 18.Bh4 Bf5 ø (GUTMAN-PETKEVICH, Latvian Ch., 1967. B - 8o). Passive middle - game play by White enabled Black to seize the center, eventu- ally utilizing the open position of WK.
2) 13...a6 → Pavljutin-Schivodov, p. 48 , after 14.Qc2.
3) 13...Qc7 14.e5! de 15.fe Qe5 16.Nc4 Qb8 17.Be3 ø= (PADEVSKY-PEJEV, Varna, 1968. W - 81). Black was never really in the game.

14. Qc2		Nd3

14...Bf4 15.Nc4 Bc1 16.Rac1 +=

15. Nc4		Nc1
16. Qc1 (96)		.....

The result is a complicated position with chances for both sides, although White's game is slightly preferable.
From diagram no. 96 :
1) 16...Bd7 17.b3 Qc7 18.Qe3 a6 += (PADEVSKY-CIOCALTEA, 17.Ol., Havanna, 1966. D - 82). White's melanpenia enabled Black to escape.
2) 16...Bg4!? 17.Bg4 Ng4, e.g.: 18.Qdl f5 19.h3 Rc8 2o.hg Rc4 21. g5 Bg7 22.ef gf 23.Qd3 Qc8 24.Racl Re3! =ø (Boleslavskij).

The loosening of the pawn structure by c4 is somewhat suspicious. Also the lack of control of e5 tells heavily against Black.
If the idea of c4 is to be justified then only Boleslavskij's 16...Bg4 holds out promise.
The mistletoe 13.e5 must be taken into account.

White's usual choice.
However, in view of the evaluation after White's 18th move (text) it would be reasonable to take a closer look at the alternatives at White's disposal (from dia.no. 164):

1) 12.o-o Ne5 13.Bf4 Nbd7 (13...Nf3?! 14.Bf3 b4 15.d6! bc 16.bc Bc3 17.Rb1 +-, Maric, CI VI) 14.Bb5 Qb6 15.Ne5 Ne5 16.Qd2 a6 17.Be2 Re8 ø (PADEVSKY-SAKHAROV, Bulgaria v. Ukrainia, 1968. B - 148). Better 23.Bc4! (Maric, CI VI). White went astray in middle game tactics. An improvement for Black is 22...Bd7.
2) 12.Nb5 Ne5 13.o-o Nbd7 (165):
   a) 14.a4 a6 15.Nd6 Rb8 16.Nc8 Qc8 = (UHLMANN-KAVALEK, Halle, 1963. B - 149). Nice example of combined Q-side and central play.

3) 12.Bb5 Ne5 13.o-o (166):
   a) 13...Bb7 14.Bf4 Nf3?! (14...Nbd7! =) 15.Rf3 Bd4 16.Kh1 += (BARCZAY-VARNUSZ, Hungarian Ch., 1963. W - 151). Black sacrificed 2 minor pieces for a R to cope with White's 2B - but his open K-position was too heavy a burden.
   b) 13...Bg4(!) 14.Be2 Bf3 15.gf f5 16.Be3 Nbd7 17.f4 Nf7 ø (PLATONOV-GELLER, Ukrainian Ch., 1958. B - 152). White's leucopenia in the center gave Black an excellent game.

   These 2 games arose via 9.Bd3, but this fact is of no significance after 12.Bb5. Also Belinkov-Zhernov, p. 74 , took this course.
4) 12.Bf4 (Keres' idea) (167):

White's advantage in material could not cope with the discord in his piece arrangement and the remarkable cooperation of the black men.
   b) 12...b4!? (168). The Russian Master Petrajev analysed this thrust in SB 1967, p.196, and we follow his investigations for the greatest part:

13. o-o (173) Ne5

Other possibilities (from dia.no.173):

The equilibrium is not disturbed (UDOVCIC-VASJUKOV, Yugoslavia v. USSR, 1963. B - 168). Black got the superior endgame when White was no longer able to resist temptation and snatched Rf8. Later White was obliged to give back the exchange, leaving Black with a winning R-ending.

Perhaps Black fares best by leaving his R at f8 in answer to Be7 and opt for utilization of the melanpenia tendencies in White's camp after an eventual Bf8.
If Black plays Re8 after Be7 then White's pressure in the f-file - in connection with Be7 - proves extremely unpleasant.

One gets the impression that Black cannot allow himself to carry out the complicated Q-side operations (Nb8-a6-c7), but has to content himsel with prophylactic play in the central region, i.e. he has to stem the tide!

CHAPTER IV
NIMZOWITZSCH PIROUETTE

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.Nf3 g6 7.Nd2

See diagram no.211

Hartston (1) calls this line "Night's Tour Attack" - and that is a very descriptive label.

This line shows the manoeuver Ngl-f3-d2-c4 (Nimzowitzsch Pirouette) in its purest form, and since Nimzowitzsch found this pirouette in the basic game Nimzowitzsch-Marshall (New York, 1927) it seems reasonable to pay respect to the inventor by letting the line have his name.

The position on diagram no.211 is the key position in this line. The benoni N is on its way to c4 with pressure against e5,d6, and b6. Naturally the pressure against d6 is of paramount importance, and the pressure can be increased by Bf4 and Nb5. It should, however, become clear from the subsequent analysis and examples that Black has sufficient resources to meet the direct tactical threats.

If Black does not want to indulge in the complications in the fight for the ram pawn at d6 he may side-step with 6...Be7 (212), protecting d6 and saving a tempo (in comparison with g6+Bg7). Most theoreticians consider this set-up too passive. But the pirouette consumes tempi. Black may allow himself manoeuvers such as Nf6-any to be followed by Bf6 with well-known prophylactic play against e5. The main drawback of the Be7-idea is that White is in no way forced to complete the pirouette immediately, but may opt for positions akin to "Solid Line"; such policy seems to create discord in Black's camp and has consequently been White's major choice.
Some examples of this "Timid Benoni" (from dia.no.212):

1) 7.e4 o-o 8.Be2 (213):
   a) 8...Re8 9.Bf4 Bg4 1o.o-o Bf8? (1o...Bf3!, SB 1961) 11.Nd2 Be2 12.Qe2 += (MAKOGONOV-SPASSKIJ, USSR Team Ch., 196o. B - 196). White's K-side attack developed too slowly, and Black's Q-side initiative spread to the center.
   b) 8...Ne8 9.o-o Bf6 1o.Be3 Nd7 11.Nd2 Qe7 12.Rel Nc7 ø (OSNOS-SPASSKIJ, Leningrad, 1956. W - 197). Obviously Pe4 was poisoned.
   c) 8...Na6 9.o-o Nc7 (214):
      c1) 1o.a3! (Good idea when Black has not fianchettoed his KB) 1o...Rfe8 11.Qc2 Bg4 12.b4 += (FURMAN-OSNOS, 31.USSR Ch., 1963. W - 198). An uphill struggle for Black all the way.
      c2) 1o.Rel Rb8 11.a4 a6 12.a5 Nd7 13.Bf4 f6 += (LOKVENC-LEINVEBER, Vienna, 196o. W - 199). Passive play by Black accelerated his downfall. Be7 was no jewel.
2) 7.Nd2 o-o 8.Nc4 Ne8 9.Bf4 Bf6 1o.e3 Nd7 = (KOTOV-TOLUSH, 1/2 24. USSR Ch., 1956. B - 2oo). White went for a piece attack against Black's K-side but obtained nothing whatsoever. This game indicates the necessity of utilizing the pawn majority for attacking purposes.

The over-all impression from these examples is that pirouette completed 2) gives Black an excellent game, while 1) leaves Black facing the problem of how to establish prophylactic play in the e-file without leaving White a free hand on the Q-side.
One might conclude this digression by stating that players fearing the complications around the defence of the ram pawn (d6) are well advised to choose a "Benoni Major" set-up (p. iii).

2) 7...a6 only limits Black's possibilities. b6+Ba6 is no longer possible. The humoristic game BORISSENKO-LAZAREVICH (Plovdiv, USSR, 1959. B - 2o8) took this course.

3) 7...Na6(?). This decides the position of the N too early, e.g.: 8.Nc4 Nc7 9.a4 b6 10.e4 Ba6 11.Bg5 h6 12.Bh4 Bc4 13.Bc4 Bg7 14.o-o o-o 15.f4 Qd7 16.e5 +- (DONNER-ESTRADA, Varna, 1962).

After 9...h6 lo.Bh4 (227) the following examples are known:
1) lo...a6 (Weak, Euwe) 11.a4 g5 12.Bg3 Ne8 13.e4 f5 14.ef Bf5 15. Be2 b6 16.o-o Rf7 17.Bg4 += (DONNER-LANGEWEG, Beverwijk, 1963).

3) lo...Qd7!? (Robatsch's suggestion after his game against van den Berg. Black unpins and prepares for b5) (228):
   a) 11.Bg3 b5! 12.Nd6 Ba6 13.e3 b4 14.Na4 Bf1 15.Kf1 Na6 =ø (LANGEWEG-VAN DEN BERG, Dutch Ch., 1963).
   b) 11.a4:
      b1) 11...Na6(!) Ø Nb4+b6+Ba6 with fair practical chances, (Euwe).
      b2) 11...Qg4(?) 12.Bf6 Qc4 (12...Bf6 13.Nd6) 13.Bg7 Kg7 14. e3 Qb4 15.Qd2 += (Euwe).
4) lo...b6 11.e3 Ba6 12.a4 Qe7 13.Nb5 Bb5 14.ab Nbd7 15.Be2 g5!? = (SZABO-PORTISCH, Hungarian Ch., 1959. D - 21o). Interesting middle game and R-ending.

It seems as if 3) and 4) give Black satisfactory play. An improvement for White might be lo.Bf4!? instead of lo.Bh4. After say lo... Ne8 11.Qd2 Kh7 White would virtually be a tempo up in comparison to the text. Salvation for Black might be found in manoeuvers such as 11...g5 + f7-f5-f4. This possibility can be found nowhere in the standard text books. But after 11...g5 12.Bg3 (229) Black's position reminds one of the weaker variations of the Uhlmann-Averbakh Line (i.e. where Black omits the exchange manoeuver Nf6-h5-g3).

9. ..... Ne8 (230)

9...Na6 is an interesting sacrifice, e.g.: lo.Bd6 Re8 11.Bg3 Ne4 12.Ne4 Re4 13.e3 b5 =ø (ALEKSEJEV-DSCHAGAROV, "Trud", USSR, 1971. D - 211).

lo. Qd2 .....

Alternatives (from dia.no. 23o):
1) lo.Nb5 (231). Obvious and bad:

   b) lo...Bd7! 11.N5d6 b5 12.Ne8 Be8 13.Ne5 Qd6 14.Nd3 Qd5 =+
2) lo.Ne4 (Better than alt.1, but still unavailing) lo...b5 11.Ncd6 Nd6 12.Bd6 Re8. (1) claims that Black is winning while (5) states that Black has "a dangerous initiative".
3) lo.e4 f5!:
   a) 11.ef Bf5 =+
   b) 11.e5? g5 12.Bd2 de 13.Qh5 Bf6 -+ (Shaposhnikov & Judovich jr., SB 1958).
4) lo.e3 g5! 11.Bg3 f5 (232) is good for Black, e.g.:

a12) 13...gf(!) 14.Bf4 Nd7 15.Be2 Ne5 (SHAMKOVICH-VASJUKOV, Moscow, 1956). The central stronghold gives Black prospects of obtaining the upper hand.

a2) 12...Nd7 is weaker. The move was played in UUSI-VASJUKOV (Moscow, 1956) where Vasjukov introduced 10...g5!

b) 12.Qd2 (235):

b1) 12...Bc3 13.bc b5 14.Nb2 Qe7 with play on both flanks (OVTSHINKIN-SHAPOSHNIKOV, corr., 1959).

5) 10.g3 b6 11.Nb5 Ba6 (236):

a) 12.Ncd6? Nd6 13.Nd6 g5! -+ (5, p.195).

b) 12.a4 Bb5 13.ab Nd7 14.Bg2 Qe7 = (5, p.195).

For a somewhat similar set-up, see Krasnov-Judovich jr., Fianchetto Line, introductory remarks, p.142.

After the text move 10.Qd2 (237) White threatens to play Nb5 or Ne4.
Black has a choice between:

A: 10...b6, p.106.
B: 10...Bc3, p.110.
C: 10...Nd7!? 11.Nd6 Ne5 12.Ne8 Nc4 13.Qd3 Nb2 14.Qc2 Re8 15.Qb2 b5 16.a3 b4 17.ab Re4 18.Bh6 Rb4 19.Qd2 Bf6 =ø (238) (JUDOVICH JR.-KOZLOV, Moscow, 1966. B - 213). Hartston (1) considers this sacrifice "exceedingly unsound", but suggests no improvements for White. Playing over the game one gets the opposite idea!
D: 10...a6? 11.a4 f5!? 12.a5! Qc7 13.Nb6 Ra7 14.e3 Nd7 += (239) (THORBERGSSON-HAMANN, Lidköping, Sweden, 1969. D - 214). This set-up with a R buried at a7 should not be recommended.

The text 12...f5 is partly a waiting move. Black intends to exchange at c4 only after White has developed his KB. Boleslavskij (lo) judges 12...f5 risky because of 13.h4, but his argument is hardly convincing (see note to White's 13th move).
The alternative is 12...Bc4 13.Bc4 (247):

a2) 14...Qe7 15.Rab1 Nd7 16.Rfc1 f5 17.b4? (252) (BORISSENKO-POLUGAJEVSKIJ, 23.USSR Ch., 1956). Hartston (1) considers this position as being in White's favour, but Boleslavskij proves it a loss for White after 17...cb 18.Rb4 g5 19.Bg3 f4 2o.ef gf 21.Bf4 Rf4 22.Qf4 Bc3 Ø 23.Rc3 Qe1 -+ The lesson is that Bf4 should be withdrawn in time(17.Bg3).

13. Be2 ......

13.h4 (253) is not dangerous for Black, e.g.:
1) 13...Qe7(?) 14.Nb5! Bb5 15.ab Nd7 16.Be2, and Black is tied up hand and foot. If Nd7 moves, there follows 17.Nb6 (Boleslavskij).
2) 13...Bc4(!) 14.Bc4 a6 15.Qe2 Nf6 16.Bd3 Ra7 17.g3 Ng4 ø (BORISSENKO-BOLESLAVSKIJ, 28.USSR Ch., 1961. B - 22o). White's attack never looked really threatening.

13. ..... Qf6
14. Bg3 Bc4
15. Bc4 a6 (254)

Now Black is a tempo up in comparison to patterns in alt.2, note to Black's 12th move (text). This gives a satisfactory game, e.g.: 16.o-o Nd7 17.f4 Nc7 18.Bf2 b5 19.ab Nb6 2o.Be2 ab 21.Bb5 Nb5 22. Nb5 Qb2 = (255) (OSNOS-FORINTOS, Leningrad v. Budapest, 1962. D - 221). Black had a slight initiative most of the time.

The drawback of this set-up for White is the lack of duo action in the center.

lo. Bc3 (256)

This aggressive move stems from Tal - of course.
Black parts with his pride - the powerhouse Bg7 - in order to activate his Q-side majority as quickly as possible. This results in a complicated position with "mutual" chances. In (6, 1972) Boleslavskij expresses little faith in this stratagem - but no outright refutation is known.

11. bc .....

The standard method of recapture.
The promising diversion is (from dia.no. 256) 11.Qc3, e.g.:

1) 12...b4 13.Qc2 Qe7 (13...a5!?) 14.Qe4 Qf6 15.o-o-o ø (MATSKEVICH-SUETIN, ½ 24.USSR Ch., 1957). The verdict ø comes from (1), while Boleslavskij (6) gives exactly the same game in support of his disbelief in lo...Bc3.
   No doubt - 11.Qc3 is a sound move, leaving d2 vacant for the benoni N.
2) 12...f5?! 13.h4 Qf6 14.Qg3 h5 15.o-o-o a5 16.e4 a4 17.e5 de 18. Be5 f4 += (HERNANDEZ-MALMGREN, 16.Students' Ol., Dresden, 1969. W - 222). The endgame was clearly in White's favour.

"Steinitz would certainly have approved of Black's play; with all his pieces on the back rank he has a good position" (1).
Maybe. It is difficult to obtain confirmation.

12. Nb2 (258) Bb7

The examples given in 1) and 2) show that Black has no problem holding his own in this e3-set-up. He needs not keep an eye on the duo lever e5, since this break is far off, but can prepare for counterplay on the Q-side at his leisure.

11. ..... b5!

"Stellungsgemäss" and strong.
Black has at least an equal game.
Alternatives are less consistent and hence weaker:
1) 11...a6? (Formerly considered unclear (1), or unsatisfactory (6, 1972) - but it is simply bad) (279):

Black suffers from claustrophobia. It is difficult to establish Q-side play and to prevent White from duo action (f2-f4+e5).

Unless improvements can be found in 9...Qe7 this variation is rather uncomfortable for Black. Bd7 creates discord.
The basic point, however, is that Black needs not enter this B1-variation at all.

Most likely a bad set-up. The B blocks the Q's defence of the d-pawn (important after the duo lever e5), allows the pin Bg4 and allows c4 or Ne5 with gain of tempo.

This is basicly the same idea as in B1. White intends to create discord in Black's camp. The idea is probably weaker here than in B1 since White has no pressure against d6. Transposition to B1 and A may occur, as seen in alt.2.
Examples from diagram no.321:

Probably Zagorjanskij should be canonized for being the first player to use the 2S-trick. It worked perfectly in this game - mainly due to Black's ignorance of what was in store for him.
   b) 8...Bg7 9.a4 o-o lo.o-o a6 11.Bd3 Re8 12.Bg5 h6 13.Bf4 Qc7 ø (VALGEIRSSON-BJORNSSON, Reykjavik Ch., 1962. W - 293). Black concentrated too much on the Q-side, and White took advantage of the airy structure on Black's K-side.
   This is basically a 2S-game (see p.198) with an extra tempo (Bf1-b5-d3) for Black (cf. alt.3, note to Black's loth move, p.2o2).
2) 7...Bd7(!) 8.a4 a6 (323):

CHAPTER VI
FIANCHETTO LINE

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.g3 g6 7.Bg2 Bg7

See diagram no.325

A bizarre mixture of "Nimzowitzsch Pirouette" and "Fianchetto Line" is found in KRASNOV-JUDOVICH JR. (Zheboksary, USSR, 196o. B - 295): 7.Nf3 (instead of 7.Bg2) 7...Bg7 8.Nd2 o-o 9.Nc4 b6 lo.Bf4 Ba6 11. Nd6 Nh5 12.Nde4 Nf4 13.gf Nd7 =ø. Apart from the method chosen by Black in this game standard methods (Chapter IV) are also sufficient.

In (7, p.64) Euwe states: "Fianchettoing the B gives a solid set-up which was very popular about lo years ago. Today preference is given to a central development of Bf1 - more out of fashionable than objective reasons".
The first part of the statement is beyond dispute. The second is easily pulled to pieces: Bf1-g2 removes the B from the diagonal f1-a6 (including the squares c4 and b5, ie. MBS and BSS) and Bg2's future prospects depend entirely on a successful dissolution of the ram. An asset of Bg2 is the extra protection of d5 and e4. Further, it should be mentioned that Kmoch (9) considers the fianchetto structure illogical and that Korchnoi almost invariably employs it!
A plausible explanation of the frequency of the "Fianchetto Line" is the numerous transpositional possibilities from various Indian Lines and Flank Openings.
Anyway - Tartakower once said: "You need not fianchetto".

8. Nf3 .....

The natural move. The N keeps an eye on e5 and is ready for the pirouette.
Independent tracks (from dia.no. 325):

Clearly e4+Nge2 is a non-profit affair. Nge2 excludes the pirouette and White obtains no pressure against d6.

8. ..... o-o

Strange play is seen in LUKIN-ARSENJEV (½ "Trud" Ch., USSR, 1965. B - 3oo): 8...Na6 9.Nd2 Nc7 1o.Nc4? b5 11.Nd6 Qd6 12.Bf4 Qb6 13. o-o -+. You can also buy a pawn-roller too dearly.

9. o-o (334) .....

This is the basic position for the "Fianchetto Line".
White has developed his pieces without compromising himself. His future plan of campaign consists in the pirouette + lever action in the center + restriction of Black's Q-side ambitions - or vice versa.
The bands of Black's spectrum for counterplay are the usual ones + a couple based on White's K-side structure, viz:

p.146 A: 9... a6 (Ø immediate attempt of duo action) p.172 B: 9...Qe7 (Ø prophylactic play in the e-file. Black also avoids weakening his Q-side prematurely).
p.174 C: 9...Na6 (Ø Nc7 with pressure against b5 and d5. The pressure against d5 renders White's duo d5+e5 more difficult to achieve).
p.184 D: 9...Nbd7 (Ø blockade of e5 - WSS).
p.188 E: 9...Bg4 (Ø exchange the benoni N or Bg2. Simultaneously Black obtains more manoeuvering space in his back ranks).
p.192 F: 9...Bf5 (Ø exchange Bg2).
p.192 G: 9... b6 (Ø Ba6, controlling c4).
p.194 H: 9...Re8 (Ø prophylactic play in the e-file, i.e. same as B). p.196 I: 9...Bd7 (Ø duo action).

Today A,C,D, and H are the most popular in tournament practice. B still leaves room for thinking of your own - if that is your liking. Finally it should be noticed that transposition A-D-H is frequent, but to a great extent must be subjected to the reader's own analysis. Cross-connections, however, are given in a reasonable number.

2) 12.h3 Nh5 13.a5 b5 14.ab Nb6 15.e4 Re8 → Peterson-Juferov, p.158.

12. ..... Ne8 (344)

Little explored tracks (from dia.no.343):
1) 12...Ne5!? 13.Na3 (13.Ne5) 13...Re8 14.h3 Qc7 15.f4 Ned7 16.Qd3 Nb6 17.e4 c4 = (KOZMA-HOGKVIST, Students' World Ch., Reykjavik, 1957. W - 3lo). Black's Q-side play was too slow and a blunder (33...Nd4) accelerated defeat.
2) 12...Nb6?? is a wrong track because of 13.Nd6! (345) Ø 13... Qd6 14.Bf4 with destruction in the offing. This simple tactical turn was not noticed by the white players in BORISSENKO-DERVIZ (Leningrad Ch., 1956. B - 311) and Mamkin-Zhaplinskij (given below), both games continuing 13.Na3. In the former game additional strange play by White forced poetic justice to take its toll, while innocence turned out to be a harmless digression in the latter, play transposing to normal patterns.

13. a5 .....

Other tries (from dia.no.344):
1) 13.Bf4 Nb6 14.Na3 Bd7 15.a5 (346):

   b) 15...Na8 16.Nc4 Bb5 17.Qb3 Nac7 18.Nb6 f5 Ø (SEILZ-KHODOS, USSR, 1961. B - 313).In this type of position 22.Be3 is equivalent to suicide.

Black's manoeuver Nb8-d7-b6-c8-a7-b5-d4-f5-e7-c8-b6 must be the most grandiose waste of time in chess history. Naturally Black was wiped out in the center. Maybe Hartoch tried to solve the Euler Problem, but the occasion was ill-chosen.

Black's prophylactic pressure in the e-file tied White down, and a break in the f- and g-file sent him spinning. (It should be noticed that in the actual game the number is greater by two because of a repetition of moves).

14. ..... Nc7 (347)

14...Nd7→A5, alt.3a, p.17o.
This position was in focus in the 5o'ties but is recently only seen sporadically. Examples and analysis:

3) 15.Ne4 Bf5 (15...Nb5!?, Pachman) 16.Bg5 f6 17.Bd2 (352):
   a) 17...Be4 18.Be4 f5 19.Bg2 Nd7 (353):

   b) 17...Re8 18.Nc3 Bd7 19.b4 cb 2o.Na2 Bb5 = (TESCHNER-ESCHEK, Moscow, 1956).
4) 15.Qb3! (Ø prevent Black from activating Nc7) 15...Bd7 (15... Nd7 16.Bf4 +=) 16.h3 Bb5 17.Bf4, e.g.: 17...Qe7 18.Rfel Nd7 19. Ne4 Ne5 += or 19...Be5 2o.Bg5 f6 21.Bh6 += (Boleslavskij).

14. Nb3 (384) .....

The N is heading for c6 (Nb3-a5-c6). Black's most promising continuation is to prevent this transfer.
A solid choice for White is 14.Re1, e.g.: 14...Rb8 15.e4 Qc7 16. Nf1 Nc4 17.Qe2 Ne5 18.f4 Ned7 19.Ne3 Nb6 2o.Bd2 += (Suetin). But it should not be too difficult to improve on Black's play - the pointlessness of the turning Nb6-c4-e5-d7-b6 is obvious.

      a2) 17...Nfd7 18.Qb3 gives White a better position than in Euwe-Kotov below, since White's e-pawn is free to advance.
      a3) 17...Rfb8 18.Ra3 Nc4 19.Nc4 Bc4 2o.b3 Bb5 21.Qc2 += (Boleslavskij).
   b) 17.Be3 Nfd7 (17...Nc4 18.Nc4 Bc4 19.Qa4 Bb5 2o.Nb5 ab 21.Qa8 Ra8 22.Ra8 +-, Judovich, 5) 18.Qb3 (387):

      b3) 18...Bc3 19.Qc3 Be2 2o.Rfe1 Bb5 21.Bh6 f6 22.Re6 and White has a dangerous initiative (Judovich, 5).

It is remarkable that Kapengut in his notes (SvSSSR 8/1970) to the encounter L.Grigorjan-Kapengut (text) suggests no improvements at all for White after move no.12. In SB 1971 he advocates 18.Qc4 Rb4 19.Nd2 Rc4 2o.Nc4 (393) Ø Bf4, but this is dubious - to put it mildly.

9. ..... Qe7 (403)

Prophylactic play starts right away.
Instead of 9...Qe7 Black may play 9...Nbd7, transposing into the text after 1o.Nd2 Qe7.
According to Hartston (1) 9...Qe7 is Black's most solid choice inside the "Fianchetto Line". The main virtue of this move lies in the fact that it keeps White guessing a little longer. Black also avoids weakening his Q-side prematurely. In A Black had weakened his Q-side by a6 and was forced to remind himself of the possibility of a white N anchoring at b6, unnerving his entire Q-flank.

   b) 14.Nde4 Nc7 15.Bg5 f6 16.Bf4 ø (Euwe).
2) 11.a4 Ne5 12.f4 N5g4 13.Nc4 Ne8 14.e3 f5 15.h3 N4f6 16.Re1 Bd7 ø (LILIENTHAL-SUETIN, 21.USSR Ch., 1954. W - 366). In a quite satisfactory position Black forgot about a simple tactical threat (36.Nc4).
3) 11.Re1 Ne5 12.h3 Re8 13.Qc2 c4 14.Rf1?! Qc7 =+ (EALES-PRITCHETT, Groningen, 197o. D - 367). White was fortunate to escape.

But with no benoni N the text is perfectly playable since White has difficulties in exploiting the pocket at b6.

After 13...a6 (see dia.no. 4o6) Black had a comfortable position in GLIGORIC-PETROSJAN (Neuhausen-Zurich, 1953. D -368), cont.: 14.a5 Re8 15.Bf4 Qe7 16.Qb3 Nd7 (407) (+=, Euwe & Boleslavskij). It is hard to see that Black had any problems, and nobody has ever indicated where White failed in exploiting his postulated advantage (+=).

The variation (9...Qe7) has never gained real popularity and is consequently but sparcely documented. This is strange since Black's men work together very harmoniously.

9. ..... Na6 (408)

The philosophy behind this stratagem (indispensable in the Yugoslavian Variation of the King's Indian Defence) is twofold: To prepare for duo action (b5) and to pile up pressure against White's ram pawn at d5.
In principle nothing is wrong in this plan. In practice, however, certain drawbacks cannot be suppressed: First the manoeuver consumes time (tempi), secondly Black's control of e5 (WSS) is diminished in comparison with A and B, and thirdly White's ram pawn is sufficiently defended by Bg2. In "Solid Line" (Chapter IX) the turning Nb8-a6-c7 is often a promising idea for Black, but here the negative factors add up to an extent of rendering the turning somewhat suspicious.

Now White has to make up his mind whether he intends to: p.178 C1: Start the pirouette (1o.Nd2).
p.182 C2: Restrict Black (1o. h3).

Happy-go-lucky alternatives (from dia.no.4o8):
1) 1o.e4? (Neglecting the square g4 gives Black an easy game) (409):
   a) 1o...Bg4 11.Rel Nc7 12.h3 Bf3 13.Qf3 Nd7 14.Qe2 Re8 15.Be3 a6 16.a4 Rb8 17.Qc2 b5 = (LETELIER-DARGA, Havanna, 1964).
   b) 1o...Nc7 11.a4 Bg4 12.h3 Bf3 13.Bf3 Nd7 = (CAIRNCROSS-SCHISCHOV, corr., Great Britain v. USSR, 1962. D - 369). Black experienced little trouble from White's K-side rustling.
2) 1o.Nel Nc7 11.a4 Re8 12.Nc2 b6 13.Rel Rb8 14.h3 Nd7 15.Bd2 Qe7 16.Rb1 = (KORCHNOI-SCHMID, Erevan, USSR, 1965. W - 37o). Korchnoi has the habit of winning this type of position. The dissolution of the ram was awkward for Black.

The difference between b and a211 should be noticed. In b White's a-pawn is still at home, thus jeopardizing the black R after Rb4.

Korchnoi's move, denying black's pieces (Bc8 and Nf6) access to g4 and thus preventing typical manoeuvers such as Bc8-g4-f3 and Nf6-g4-e5. The feasibility of 10.h3 - a move which occasionally had serious consequences in A - is due to Black's QN having cut itself off from K-side service.
White's central operations are very strong indeed in this variation.

From diagram no.437 White has a solid position with genuine prospects of absolute superiority in the center area:
1) 12...Ne8 13.Bg5 Bf6 14.Be3 Rb8 15.a4 a6 16.Bf1 Qe7 17.Nd2 Nc7 18.f4 b5 19.e5 += (KORCHNOI-TAL, 3o.USSR Ch., 1962. W - 396). Black was broken on the wheel without mercy.

One should not reject this idea of Natapov's because of Black's shortcoming in these examples. There are unclear spots in Black's strategy.
Furthermore it should be noticed that the idea of g5 is found in other variations inside the MBO-complex. Recently Fischer employed it in an important game against Gligoric (see p.366). Also Vasjukov, a benoni expert, has employed the stratagem (see Uusi-Vasjukov, p.1o4).

      b2) l2.Kh2 b5 l3.Qb3! a6 l4.a4 b4 l5.Nbl Ø Nbl-d2-c4 += (Boleslavskij).
   The examples and analysis in b show - amongst other things - that White may allow Black to play b5, i.e. establish his duo, if White in the sequence is able to play a4 and break the phalanx. After b4 there is a gaping hole at c4- MBS, and occupation of c4 by a white piece means the end of Black's Q-side dreams. But the game Rokhlin-Nyman shows that Black may find compensation on the K-side if White has stressed himself a little too much in that sector.

CHAPTER VII
SEALING–SWEEPING LINE (2S–line)

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.e4 g6 7.Bd3 Bg7 8.Nge2

See diagram no. 473

A somewhat similar line is: 7.Nge2 Bg7 8.Ng3 o-o 9.Be2 (474):
1) 9...Na6 (475):
   a) 1o.Bg5 Nc7 11.Qd2 Re8 12.a4 Bd7 ø (BUKHMAN-SHASHIN, Leningrad Ch., 1971. D - 419). Not a typical game for the 2S-line, but crammed with interesting tactics.
   b) 1o.o-o Nc7 11.Bf4 Rb8 12.Qd2 b5 ø (SZABO-LJUBOJEVIC, IBM Tourn., Amsterdam, 1972. D - 42o). A dull affair.
2) 9...a6 1o.a4 Re8 11.Bf4 Qc7 12.Qd2 Nbd7 13.o-o b6 14.Bh6 Bh8 15.h3, Drawn (SZABO-PETROSJAN, Sarajevo, 1972. D - 421).

The structure Bd3+Nge2 has its own idea: White intends to play e5, sacrificing the e-pawn in order to block the e-file and the benoni diagonal a1-h8 - and then play f5 breaking up Black's entire K-side. The square e4 which has now been cleared will play an important role in the subsequent fight for the K-side - it will act as a focal point for White's pieces, especially his cavalry.
Conferring the discussion of the pawn structure (p. v) it is reasonable to label this line the "Sealing-Sweeping Line" (the 2S-line) in order to describe White's basic aims (Hartston (1) calls it the "Penrose-Tal Line").

8. ..... o-o (476)

Other possibilities (from dia.no.473):
1) 8...Na6 9.o-o Nc7 1o.a4 o-o → A3, note to White's 1oth move, alt.5, p.212.
2) 8...a6 9.a4 Qc7 1o.Bd2 Nbd7 11.Qc1 h6 12.f4 o-o 13.o-o Kh7 14. h3 Re8 = (GOLDBLAT-UTJATSKIJ, Moscow, 1961. W - 422). Interesting fight until Black committed hara-kiri (26...Bc3?). Melanpenia.

After 8...o-o (dia.no.476) we have reached the basic position for the 2S-line.
White is able to control b5 for a long time to come, and with a N at g3 (Ne2-g3 is almost standard) the pawn at e4 will be sufficiently protected. All in all this appears to be a reasonable deployment of White's forces.
Also in Black's camp harmony prevails. His future plans of campaign are not very different from the usual ones. A characteristic of the position is that White's pressure against d6 is not present - the Nimzowitzsch Pirouette is impossible. This fact should give Black the opportunity of manoeuvering more freely, i.e. without being hampered by the necessity of keeping an eye on the ram pawn (d6). Simultaneously it should be noticed that this freedom is partly balanced by the fact that Black's usual (tactical+positional) pressure against e4 is of no avail as mentioned above.

White has 2 basic plans at his disposal:

p.2oo A: 9.o-o (Standard)
p.22o B: 9.Bg5 (A Russian!? idea - possibly a very good one).

Less consistent attempts:
1) 9.Ng3 a6 lo.a4 Ng4 11.f3 Ne5 12.Be2 Qh4!? 13.Be3 f5 14.f4 Nf7 15.o-o ø (NEI-BILEK, Asztalos Mem. Tourn., 1969. B - 423). The sally Qh4 - intending to utilize the slightly awkward position of Ng3 - is often strong in this line.
2) 9.f4→ a type of "Pawn Storm System", see "Rag and Bones", p.4.

2) 12.Bf4(?) is illogical. The position arose in GERUSEL-DUEBALL (Berlin, 1971. W - 432) after transposition. Bf4 is hardly good since it blocks the advance of the f-pawn (the helper). It is also difficult to increase the pressure against d6 when the pirouette is not at hand.

12. ..... Rb8

The "natural" 12...Re8 13.Ng3 (487) is too dangerous, e.g.:
1) 13...Rb8 14.Qf3 c4 15.Bc2 b5 16.ab ab 17.Be3 b4 18.Ra7 += (TARASOV-OSTROVSKIJ, "RSFSR" Ch., USSR, 1961. W - 433). An almost automatic win.

In (5, p.205) Tal has given the following comment upon the move Re8: "Black's fault in these games consists in the move Re8, which is bad for the following reasons: First the move is loss of tempo since e4 is well protected by White's chosen deployment. Secondly because the Rook only formally counteracts the thrust e5, and thirdly - most important - the move leaves the square f7 undefended."
A lot of benoni wisdom in few words.

9. Bg5 (519) .....

Apparently a Russian idea. White intends to weaken Black's K-flank in order to give the sealing-sweeping trick (the 2S-trick) added momentum (if Black plays h6 then his g-pawn is weakened in view of the thrust f2-f4-f5).

Now Black has to take his choice between forcing the B to retreat or furthering his own plans:

1) 9...h6 (520):
   a) 10.Bd2 Nbd7 11.Ng3 Ne5 12.Be2 Re8 13.f4 Ned7 14.o-o a6 15.a4 h5 ø (KLAMAN-VLADIMIROV, ½ Leningrad Ch., 1966. B - 467). A sacrifice of the exchange gave Black a crushing position in the center.

2) 9...a6 10.a4 Nbd7 (521):
   a) 11.Qd2 Re8 12.o-o (522). This position may also arise via A1, alt.3b1, note to Black's 10th move, p.2o2.
      a1) 12...Qc7 13.Ng3 Rb8 14.a5 (14.Rae1 → a2) 14...c4 15.Bc2 Nc5 ø (KHODOS-MAKAROV, Moscow, 1961. B - 47o). "Une petite combinaison" won a pawn for Black. The 2S-trick was not in action.
      a2) 12...Rb8 13.Rae1 Qc7 14.Ng3 c4 15.Bc2 b5 16.Kh1 Nc5 ø (OSATJUK-TATAJEV, Moscow, 1958. W - 471). The 2S-trick worked perfectly.
   b) 11.o-o Re8 12.Rb1 (This position may also arise via A1, alt. 3b2, note to Black's 10th move, p.2o2. 12.Qd2 → a1) 12...Qc7 13.b3 Rb8 14.f4 Qa5 15.Rf3 b5 ø (SEMENOV-TATAJEV, "VTSSPS" Ch., USSR, 1959. B - 472). White spoiled a promising position by loosing the exchange for nothing.
3) 9...Qa5 10.Qd2 Nbd7 11.f4 Re8 12.o-o c4 13.Bc2 Qc5 ø (JAKHIN-TARASOV, ½ Moscow Ch., 1961. D - 473). Murky waters.
4) 9...b6. This "Suetin-idea" must be investigated. No games or analysis on record, but play may develop analogous to A2, note to White's 10th move, alt.3, p.2o6.

CHAPTER VIII
UHLMANN – AVERBAKH LINE

1.d4 Nf6 2.c4 c5 3.d5 e6 4.Nc3 ed 5.cd d6 6.Nf3 g6 7.Bg5

See diagram no. 523

The move 7.Bg5 introduces an independent and fashionable set-up. The basic idea is to tempt (force) Black to weaken his K-flank (h6+g5) in order to relieve the pin on Nf6. The price of inducing this weakness is the exchange of Bg5, and so White may easily find his skeleton in the center inflicted by melanpenia.
This desease is partly balanced by a tendency to leucopenia in Black's K-side, in particular the square f5 invites occupation by a white horseman (e.g. by the pirouettes Ngl-f3-d2-c4-e3-f5 or Nc3-dl-e3-f5). Naturally such manoeuvers are time-consuming, but the investment of tempi is normally not detrimental due to the static (ram) structure of the center.
Black's main trumps are the black squares in the center + the standard idea of Q-side play (b5 etc, i.e. duo action).
This mutual monochromy (p.v) results in games of unique character - a kind of "double-chequers" with White working on the white squares and Black working on the black squares.

If Black, however, does not utilize the opportunity of exchanging the pertinent Bg5 then White may play Qd2 Ø Bh6 (i.e. exchanging the powerhouse Bg7) or Bg5-h4(f4)-g3, piling up pressure against Black's backbone d6, the ram pawn. The over-all impression is that the second possibility leaves Black stalling - and so he is well advised to accept the challenge of indulging in the struggle between leucopenia and melanpenia.

The continuation 7.Bg5 is advocated by W.Uhlmann, but since the idea is analogous to the basic idea in Averbakh Line (normally discussed within the King's Indian Defence) these lines are discussed under the same heading. In a way the two lines are only one system where a sensible differentiation between Uhlmann Line and Averbakh Line lies in the positioning of White's e-pawn: e3 is typical (but not necessary) for the Uhlmann Line, while e4 is typical (and necessary) for the Averbakh Line.

In conclusion it might be said that this Uhlmann-Averbakh Line is the most instructive example of the leucopenia-melanpenia conflict inside the MBO-complex.

The B is needed to protect f5. Roughly, one might state that the discussion revolves around the squares e5, f5, and c4. These squares are in a certain sense corresponding.

13. Nc4 .....

Slower methods are not dangerous, e.g. (from dia.no.543): 13.Be2 Nd7 14.o-o Nb6 15.Nb3? (15.Nc4 =) 15...Bd7 16.Rbl Na4 17.Qc2 Nc3 18.bc b5 =+ (NEIKIRCH-IVKOV, 14.Ol., Leipzig, 196o. B - 486). White made no attempt to emphazise the leucopenia in Black's K-side structure.

13. ..... Qe7 (546)

13...Na6 is not consistent, e.g.: 14.Qd2 Nc7 15.a4 Qe7 16.Bd3 f5 17.Kfl Bd7 18.Kgl Rae8 19.g4 fg 2o.Ne4 g3 21.Ng3 += (KETSLAKH-KARASEV, Leningrad Ch., 1964. W - 487). No doubt Black experiences greater problems after Na6 instead of Nd7. In this line it is urgent to consolidate the K-flank and the center prior to Q-side operations. To this end the N is needed on d7.

14. Bd3 (547) .....

An attempt to accentuate the leucopenia tendencies in Black's K-side.
The alternative (from dia.no.546) is 14.Be2 (548). It is remarkable that this position is analogous to the position after White's 14th move, Averbakh Line, p.286 , the only difference being in the positioning of the e-pawns - e3 v. e4 in Averbakh Line. (See also introductory remarks, p.222). This intimate relation should justify the postulate of the necessity of simultaneously study of the Uhlmann Line and the Averbakh Line. In the Averbakh Line Pe4 adds to White's melanpenia symptoms, but is also aggressively placed, controlling f5 and being in readiness for the central advance e5. In Uhlmann Line the symptoms do not matter very much, but this virtue is partly balanced by the decrease in imminent hostility of the pawn formation. Another earmark of the Uhlmann structure is the non-existence of the extended pirouette Nf3-d2-c4-e3-f5.

From diagram no.548:

1) 14...Rd8 (549):
   a) 15.o-o Nd7 16.a4 Ne5 17.Ne5 (17.Na3 g4! paralyzes White's K-side) 17...Qe5 (17...Be5!?) 18.a5 Rb8 ø (BOTVINNIK-TAL, World Championship Match, 2nd game, 196o. D - 488).

   x) 36.Re2 Qa3 37.Rb2 Bb2 38.Nb2 Qa2 39.Kc1 Qa1 4o.Kd2 Qb2 -+
   y) 36.Nb2 Qa3 37.Kc1 Qb2 38.Kd1 a4 -+

The melanpenia in White's camp had no significance, but the leucopenia in Black's fortress allowed the first player to find the winning line by the trial-and-error method. Meanwhile Black could only twist his thumbs. In the end the lever e5 sent Black spinning.

Black, however, does not take the salient features of the position into consideration. First White may transpose to Averbakh Line by means of 9.Be2, see below. 9. ..... g5 (600)

Provoking the skirmishes.
Black weakens his K-flank and jeopardizes the right to castle. Leucopenia symptoms are looming up.
In White's camp melanpenia is not far away.
Roughly speaking the chances are about equal. It is poetical justice that diversion from the crucial line (text) entails grave trouble for the "offender": If Black should attempt to maintain the right of castling (9...a6) and simultaneously try to inflict melanpenia in White's structure he will get the worst of it (alt.1 below).

1) 1o.Nd2! (602). Preventing Nh5. It is remarkable that White allows his opponent to establish the main duo b5+c5. The explanation is that Black will find it extremely difficult - if not impossible - to maintain the duo b5+c5. He must submit to the structure c5+b4, thus freeing the square c4 for a white piece, normally a horseman. The final result is that Black has obtained nothing but blocking the Q-side, while White has retained his important QB. This fact was pointed out by Bondarevskij & Spasskij, SB 1961. See also note to White's 9th move, B32, p.252., and B31, note to Black's 9th move, alt.3, p.248 . The examples given there are actually facets of the same problem.

And not (from dia.no.61o) 11...Bd7? 12.Bd7 Qd7 13.Ne5! (SZABO-KLEIN, Santa Fé, 196o) 13...Qe7 14.Qh5 Be5 15.Be5 Qe5 16.h4 +- (FORINTOS-GOLZ, ½ European Ch., 1964. W - 539). General exchanges left Black with the inferior endgame due to the weakened structure of his K-side pawns.

12. Be2 .....

White prevents (or rather forestalls) a6+b5.
12.o-o a6 13.Be2 Ng3 14.fg!? (14.hg is hardly satisfactory after White has played o-o. So 14.fg!? is perhaps forced. In his notes to F.Portisch-Timoshenko below, Kotov adds an ! after 14.fg. Anyway - see note to White's 13th move, text) 14...Nd7 15.a4 (614):
1) 15...b6 16.Qc2 h5 17.Nd1 Ne5 ø (SZABO-PEREZ, European Team Ch., 1961. B - 54o). A game clearly illustrating the dangers for White after o-o. Black's melan-play is most instructive.
2) 15...Qe7 16.Qc2 h5 → alt.2, note to White's 13th move, p.26o.

12. ..... Ng3
13. hg (615) .....

The enterprising alternative is 13.fg (616). Naturally the idea is o-o with pressure in the f-file. This is a seductive plan - with certain drawbacks, however: White's center structure suffers from alarming melanpenia, and Black (after White's o-o) may utilize the h-file for attacking purposes (this is admittedly also the case after 13.hg+o-o, as shall be seen later). An additional earmark of 13.fg is that White's benoni majority loses its striking power. So much for generalities - examples from diagram no.616:

13...Nd7 14.o-o (617):

2) 14...Qe7 15.Qc2 a6 16.a4 h5 17.Nd1 Ne5 18.Ra3 (618):
   a) 18...Ng6 19.Ne3 g4 = (RADEV-PADEVSKY, 23.Bulgarian Ch., Sofia, 197o. W - 542). 26...f5 should be replaced by 26...Ke8!?
   b) 18...Bd7 19.Ne5 Be5 2o.Ne3 Bd4 =+ (ø) (F.PORTISCH-TIMOSHENKO, Vilnus, 1969. B - 543). Black's h-file pressure proved stronger than White's f-file pressure.

After 13.hg (text, see dia.no.615) the key position is obtained. "White's plan is a gradual advance of the king's side pawns combined with pressure on the white squares and in particular f5, where eventually he hopes to establish a knight. In contrast Black has very good play on the black squares and attacking possibilities on the queen's side. The prospects are about even" (1).
In short: The standard plans + an accelerating battle between leucopenia (Black) and melanpenia (White).
Cf. introductory remarks, p.222.

13. ..... Nd7

Alternatives (from dia.no.615):
1) The other standard way of developing the QN (Nb8-a6-c7) is inadequate in this position. Controlling WSS (e5) is Black's paramount problem. GHEORGHIU-RIVERA (Students' Ol., 1966. W - 544) ran: 13...Qe7 14.Nd2 Na6(?) 15.o-o Nc7 16.a4 b6 17.Bg4 Bg4 18. Qg4 Re8 19.Nc4 Bc3 2o.bc +=

11. Bd2 (640) .....

The sequence of moves given here is rare. Normally the position on diagram no.64o arises from the King's Indian Defence proper, but it is clearly linked to MBO-formations.
Diagram no.64o is the key position in this variation. Portisch has done a lot of work on White's part, so it seems reasonable to let the variation have his name.

Maybe one cannot blame 13...b6. But here it introduced an excessively passive set-up, which is hardly in harmony with the basic speed in the MBO.

After 13...Bg4 (See dia.no.646) we have reached the crucial point in this Portisch Variation. White's mobilization is complete, and he has prevented Black from establishing his main duo. On the other hand White is still far from the point of lever action in the center. First and foremost White must remove Bg4 and regroup his pieces to support the thrust f2-f4.
In Black's camp Nb8 is still in the stable and must be activated. Apart from that he has 2 problems to contend with:
I) Preparing for b5 (the active plan).
II)Controlling e5 (the passive plan). Prophylactic play in the e-file.
The following examples from master play should provide an idea of how these problems have been tackled until today.

This variation demonstrates that Black after missing the opportunity of the exchange manoeuver (h6+g5+Nh5+Ng3) experiences a lot of trouble with the pinning of Nf6 and/or the pressure against his ram pawn (d6).
Clearly this variation may arise from a galaxy of move orders, but the basic problem for Black is the same: ram problems and/or Q-side duo problems.

No doubt - this is one of the key positions in the Averbakh Line. (In FARAGO-HALFDARNARSON, 16.Students' Ol., Dresden, 1969. W - 592 , a similar position was reached, but with an extra tempo for Black. White played Bc1-f4-g5-h4-g3).

The position on diagram is characterized through White's melanpenia being balanced by Black's leucopenia. The square f5 is a source of constant worry to Black. He should be ready to exchange a white N whenever it enters that square (f5), e.g. Nd2-c4-e3-f5 or Nc3-d1-e3-f5. The consequence of of allowing White to plant a N on f5 is seen in Spasskij-Stein, p.284.
Black's most promising plan is to continue development, retaining control of e5 (WSS).

13. ..... Nd7 (676)

Important alternatives (from dia.no.675):
1) 13...f5 (677). Perhaps a trifle too aggressive, but difficult to refute. The move increases the leucopenia in Black's K-side, but on the other hand Black often obtains direct K-side threats.

      a2) 15.Nc4 a6 16.a4 Qe7 17.Nb6 Ra7 18.o-o Nd7 = (BILEK-EVANS, Amsterdam Interzonal, 1964. B - 595). Instructive to see how easily Black got a K-side attack rolling after 18.o-o.
      a3) 15.Bg4!? Bg6 16.Be6 Kh7 17.Qg4 Qb6 ø (BALASHOV-KEENE, Hastings, 1965/66. D - 596). It is well worth studying this Bg4-idea. Black was on the defensive all the time. Probably 15...Bg6 is faulty.
   b) 14.Nc4! (680). The positional continuation. Now Black will be kept busy protecting his weaknesses.
      b1) 14...Na6 (Since Nd7 is possible only after preparation Black's control of the central position - in casu e5 - is less firm than in text. Furthermore the N will find little to do from c7. It seems urgent to be able to challenge Nc4 by means of Nb8-d7-e5) 15.ef Bf5 16.o-o Nc7 (681):

14. ..... Qe7! (693)

The most elastic move.
Now the fight flares up between "melanpenia, distinct but arrested" in White's camp (K-side only) and "leucopenia, distinct but arrested" in Black's camp (K-side only).
Alternatives (from dia.no. 691):
1) 14...Nf6 (694):
   a) 15.f3 Qe7 16.g4 Bd7 17.a4 Ne8 (+=, Gligoric) 18.Qd3 Rd8 19. Ra3 Bc8 += (PANNO-JOHANSSON, 17.Ol., Havanna, 1966. D - 6lo). In (2, p.131) the authors state that "White had a complete bind on the position" after Black's 19th move. Therefore it is remarkable that Gligoric (CI II) does not indicate where White failed in exploiting the advantage. One must conclude that Black's position is fully defensible - or Gligoric holds back important information.
   b) 15.f4 b5 16.fg hg 17.Nb5 Ne4 18.Qc2 Re8 19.o-o-o ø (GARCIA-LEHMANN, Havanna, 1965).

One of the oddest and most difficult variations inside the MBO-complex. The pawn structure gives rise to heavy-weight hand-to-hand encounters.
Last but not least: Not all transpositional possibilities are given, but the basic ideas should be clear.

See diagram no. 705 → 707

The main characteristic of this line is the slow build-up for both sides.
White first of all secures (safeguards) his position in the center - only then preparations are taken to establish the main duo.
Normally play develops in a clear cut way.

The "Solid Line" is in focus today - it leaves White with fair prospects for obtaining the upper hand without running too grave risks.

For ramifications from diagram no.7o5 , see flow chart p.294.

A futuristic idea is 7...Bg4!? (instead of 7...Bg7) (706):
1) 8.Be2 Bf3 9.Bf3 Nbd7 lo.Bf4 a6 11.a4 Qb8 12.Qd2 Bg7 13.Bh6 o-o 14.h4!? ø (FOGUELMAN-BELITSKIJ, Mar-del-Plata, 196o. B - 626).
2) 8.Be2 a6 9.a4 Bf3 lo.Bf3 Nbd7 11.o-o Bg7 12.Bf4 Qb8 13.Be2 o-o 14.Bg3 ø (WEXLER-BRONSTEIN, Mar-del-Plata, 196o. B - 627).
The idea of transferring BQ to b8 to support the ram pawn (d6) and to prepare for b5 is certainly remarkable.

Another futuristic idea is 8...Bg4, eg. 9.Qa4→D, alt.2, p.138.

9. ..... Bg4 (708)

Probably this direct attempt is weaker than 9...a6 1o.a4 Bg4, see B, p.298.

Ramifications after 9...Bg4 (from dia.no. 7o8):
1) 1o.h3(!) Bf3 11.Bf3 (709):
   a) 11...Nbd7 12.Bf4 Ne8 (710) (12...Ne5!?, SB 1957):
      a1) 13.Qd2 a6 (711):

Impressive example of the strength of the white central pawn formation. White's sacrifice of the exchange was as strong as it was obvious: It dissolved the ram and Black was in no position to stem the onrush of the pawn roller.
         a12) 14.Be2 b5 15.a4 b4 16.Nd1 Qe7 17.f3 += (HARTOCH-BROWNE, IBM Tourn., Amsterdam, 1972. D - 629). Blocking the Q-side left Black with a dull but solid position.
      a2) 13.Be2 a6 14.a4 Qe7 15.Qc2 b6 16.Bh2 Nc7 17.f4 Rae8 ø (POLUGAJEVSKIJ-TOMSON, "Burevestnik" Ch., USSR, 1962. W - 63o). Opening the a-file was poor judgement.
      a3) 13.Rel a6 14.a4 Rc8 15.Qc2 c4 16.Bg4 Rc7 17.Bd7 Qd7 18. a5 Rc5 19.Qa4 Qe7 2o.Qb4 Nf6 21.Qb6 Rd8 += (SANGUINETTI-MALICH, 18.Ol., Lugano, 1968. W - 631). Black lost an apparently drawn ending.
      Alt.lall renders 9...Bg4 suspicious!? White is a tempo up in comparison to B.
   b) 11...a6 (712):
      b1) 12.a4 → B, text, p.3o6.
      b2) 12.Bf4! (713) ø 13.e5!. White is able to opt for a more aggressive position than he obtains in B. 12.Bf4 was investigated by Smislov, and his analysis was published in SB 1957:
         b21) 12...b5 13.e5 de 14.d6 Ra7 15.Be5 +=
         b22) 12...Qc7 13.e5 de 14.d6 +=

      In short: The duo lever e5 gives White the upper hand.
2) 1o.Bf4 (714):
   a) 1o...Re8 (715):
      a1) 11.Qc2 Na6 12.h3 Bf3 13.Bf3 Qb6 14.b3 Nd7 15.a3 Bd4 16. Radl Ne5 ø (BALASHOV-SAVON, 39.USSR Ch., 1971. B - 632). Black's idea of sacrificing the exchange in order to control the dark squares on the Q-side and in the center met with complete success. 18.Khl!? (Savon).
      a2) 11.h3(!) (716):
         a21) 11...Ne4? (This little combination is excellent in B due to the interpolation a6+a4. Here it is simply a mistake) 12.hg Bc3 13.Bb5! Bb2 +- (KORCHNOI-LUTIKOV, 26.USSR Ch., 1959. W - 633). Ten years later history repeats itself in SIRKIJA-WAHLBOM (Dresden, 1969. W - 634).

9. ..... a6
1o. a4 (720) Bg4 (721)

This was the original way of playing in Solid Line.
Later 9...Re8 (E) came into fashion, but in recent years 1o...Bg4 has had a renaissance, possibly due to dissatisfaction with Black's results in E, where especially Gligoric's discovery 11.f3 has given Black a head-ache.
The basic idea in 1o...Bg4 is sound: Black intends to remove the benoni N. A drawback is that the position later might be opened up and then White's 2B will gain strength.

The drawback of this type (for Black) is that White immediately gains control of the white squares on the K-side (the white-squared Bs are removed in an early phase).

b2) 12...Bf3 13.Bf3 (+=, Gufeld, CI XIII) 13...Nbd7 14.Be2 Re8 15.f4 Qb6 16.Qc2 Qb4 17.Bf3 c4 ø (ZAKHAROV-ZHIDKOV, USSR, 1972. B - 654). Impressive black Q-side play spreading to the center. The move 9...Re8 introduces what appears to be the most debated variation inside the MBO-complex.
Theory is still fluctuating, but what follows should present a fairly broad survey of present-day points of view.

White can protect Pe4 in two ways:

p.314 E1: lo.Qc2
Astonishing intricacies may arise from this variation, ultimately favouring White.
However, Black has solid alternatives.
p.326 E2: lo.Nd2
This move is logical - "stellungsgemäss"- the pirouette is begun and the helper Pf2 free to advance (slowly).
Black has problems here, especially Gligoric's idea of 11.f3 has given Black a head-ache.

It should be mentioned that Gligoric prefers lo.Nd2, while Korchnoi (who after all is somebody, too) has a predilection for lo.Qc2.
For ramifications after 9...Re8, see also FLOW CHART, p.294.

This is one of the key positions in MBO.
White is ready for advancing the helper (f2-f3 or f2-f4) and establish his main duo. The pirouette is initiated to press against Black's ram pawn (d6).
It is characteristic for this variation that White (apparently) is able to prevent Black from advantageous operations on the Q-side (E213). Consequently Black often searches for consolation on the K-side by means of f5, but the resulting weakness of his pawn structure entails serious problems.

For ramifications after 1o.Nd2, see FLOW CHART, p.294 (E21-E24).

1o. Na6 (805)

A standard idea. The N is heading for c7, there exerting pressure against b5 and d5 (i.e. prepares for duo action on the Q-side and renders White's lever action e5 more difficult to carry through because of the resulting weakness of the d-pawn). Compare introductory remarks, Fianchetto Line, C, p.174.
The plan Na6-c7 is Black's most logical and flexible continuation.

White's possibilities after 1o...Na6 are legion, see FLOW CHART, p.294 , E211-E218.

11. f3 (817) .....

Gligoric's favourite move. Due to his untiring willingness to play the white side it seems reasonable to let the variation have his name.
Judging from the results this pawn structure appears to be White's most promising set-up inside the Solid Line.
The philosophy behind 11.f3 is simple: White safeguards his center and under cover of the granite pawn chain g2+f3+e4+d5 he completes his development. Simultaneously control of the diagonal f1-a6 is maintained, thus making the realization of Black's Q-side ambitions more laborious.
Black's counter is normally the manoeuver Nf6-d7 in order to be ready for Nd7-e5 to control c4, and for f7-f5 to stem the white center once it threatens to move. On the plus side Black can book certain melanpenia symptoms in White's K-side due to 11.f3.

For ramifications after 11.f3, see FLOW CHART, p.294 , E2131-2135.

It might seem a little exaggerated to subdivide after 11.f3, but the future will surely reveal a host of games on the 11.f3-theme; thus it is convenient to sketch a framework now.

W - 729). Surely it is illogical to embark upon this track. Black is a tempo down in comparison with E21312, p.348, and since Black's problems there are harsh they are hardly diminished by having a tempo less.

After 12.a4 (see dia.no.819) Black has to make up his mind:

   a) 14...Bc4 15.Bc4 a6 16.Rel Nd7! = (PARTOS-MATULOVIC, Bucharest, 1966. B - 771). The difference between this game and the examples in alt.lc2 is clear: In lc2 White gained a tempo (Qd2) for protecting Nc3, thus facilitating the advance b4 (cf. dia.no. 85o).
   b) 14...Qe7(?) 15.Qd2 Nd7 16.Rfe1 Qf8(?) 17.Nb5 Bb5 18.ab Rfb8 19.Na3 Qe8 2o.Rab1 a6 21.b4! += (PORAT-STAHLBERG, 16.Ol., Tel Aviv, 1964. W - 772). The idea of Qd8-e7-f8 is obviously too artificial here.

4) 14.Ne3 Be2 15.Qe2 a6 16.Rb1 Nh5 ø (DONNER-ENKLAR, IBM Tourn., Amsterdam, 1972. W - 773). Black was not prepared for White's duo-lever action.

5) 14.Na3 (857):
   a) 14...Be2 15.Ne2 (858):
      a1) 15...Nd7 16.Kh1 Ne5 17.Nc3 f5 18.Nab5 a6 19.Nc7 Qc7 = (DONNER-JANOSEVIC, IBM Tourn., Amsterdam, 197o. D - 774). Black missed a number of promising lines: x) 23...Rf1 24. Qf1 Qe7 -+; y) 28...b5!; z) 31...Nc3! 32.bc Re3! ø 33... Rh3 -+ (Janosevic, CI X).

   b) 14...Nfd5!? 15.Ba6 Nc3 16.Qd3 Na4 17.Bb5 c4! =+ (Janosevic, CI X).

6) 14.Rb1 (859) ø b4:
   a) 14...Rb8 → alt.3b1, p.346.
   b) 14...Bc4 15.Bc4 Nd7 (860):

      b2) 16.Nb5 Ne5 17.Nc7 Qc7 18.Bb5 Nd7 += (GLIGORIC-LOBIGAS, Manila, 1968. W - 777). Black blocked the Q-side, hoping to establish a K-side defence on the black squares. Eventually duo-lever action gave White the upper hand.

2) 13.Ndbl!? (Maric, CI IX+Velimirovic, CI VIII). Ø Nbl-a3-c4 or Nbl-a3-b5, i.e. delaying exchange-possibilities at c4.

15. f4 — Nf7
16. ef (876) — gf (877)

Matulovic's latest creation is (from dia.no. 876) 16...Nh6!!? 17.fg Bd4 18.gh (18.Rf3!?) 18...Kh8 19.Rf3 Ng4 2o.Qd3 Qh4! =Ø (TOT-MATULOVIC, Match, 1972. B - 795). "Omelette Surprise" (878). Certainly this fantastic idea of sacrificing 3P will provoke a wealth of analysis. It is remarkable to see the excellent coordination of Black's men in contrast to White's huddled pieces. See comment p. 358, alt.2.

After the text (16...gf) Black is the happy owner of a weak f-pawn. White's plan of campaign is simple and straightforward: Pile up pressure against f5 and exploit the semi-open g-file. Black's future is dull indeed, one has the sneaking feeling that Black has been active in the wrong sector.
Examples and analysis from dia.no. 877:

3) 12.a4 Nb4 (?! 12...Nc7) 13.Nc4 a6 14.a5 Nh5? 15.g4! Nf6 16.Bf4 Bf8 17.Qd2 Bg4? 18.fg Ne4 19.Qdl +- (FURMAN-FILIPOVIC, Polanica Zdroj, 1967. W - 8o7).

11. ..... Bd7 (889)

The idea behind this move is not clear. Perhaps Black hopes for a quick b5. Since White's pieces are in position to prevent b5, however, Black's deployment will present a picture without harmony.
One example:
12.a4 Nh5 13.Nc4 f5 14.Bd3? (14.f4 +=) 14...Bd4 15.Be3 Nf4 16.Bd4 cd 17.Ne2 Nd3 18.Qd3 Nc5 19.Qa3 d3 ø (SMIRNOV-NEBOLSHIN, "RSFSR" Ch., USSR, 1965. B - 8o8).

11. Bf3 (891) .....

Not posing Black any problems. The B only blocks the path of Pf2. One example:
11...Rb8 12.a4 Nd7 13.Nc4 Ne5 14.Ne5 Be5 15.Be3 Nb4 = (ALBAREDA-J.LITTLEWOOD, Lausanne, 1963).

11. Ba6? (892) .....

It is not always advantageous to "burden" one's opponent with a doubled pawn. Here it is simply bad - Black obtains the 2B and an open b-file immediately.
One example:
11...ba 12.f3 Bd7 13.a4 Rb8 14.Nc4 Nh5 15.g4 (15.Nd6!?) 15...Bd4 16.Kg2 Rb4 17.Qd3 Qa5 with a promising position for Black (KRAIDMAN-KANKO, Students' Ol., 1955).

11. Rb1 Bd7 (893)

A little explored possibility. Hartston's (1) opinion is low, but more documentary material is needed.

This sequence is highly interesting since it leads to the same position as shown on dia. no.877 - but with the extra tempo Khl because of f2-f4 instead of f2-f3-f4. This extra move rules out Matulovic's 3P-sacrifice (see note to Black's 16th move, p.35o) because of the absence of the pinning motif Bd4.
3) 12...Rb8 13.f4 (This is clearly a type of 4P-Attack, see alt.1a3, p.88) 13...a6 14.a5 Bd7 15.Bf3 Nb5 16.e5!? de 17.fe Re5 18.Nc4 Rf5 ø= (UFIMTSEV-TAL, "Spartakiad", USSR, 1967. B - 81o). White succeeded in catching the enterprising R, but in the process his K-side was weakened to an extent of making it an easy booty for the black cavalry.

16. g4	.....

Or (from dia.no. 9ol) 16.Bg5 Nh5 17.g4 Ng7 18.e5! += (R.BYRNE-EVANS, US Ch., 1963/64).

DONNER-JANOSEVIC (Venice, 1967. W - 815) cont.: 16...Rad8 17.Qd2 b5 18.ab Nb5 19.Nb5 Qb5 2o.Qd3 (902). White's chances on the K-side are more real than Black's dreams on the Q-side.

The whole idea (b6+Ba6) is not satisfactory here. Black experiences too much trouble with his back-bone, the ram pawn (d6).

A summary of Keres' article in "Chess Archives", April, 1971, with additional remarks.

In the famous blitz-tournament in Yugoslavia (1971) Black (Tal) played this move (Nbd7, see p. 18) against Reshevsky, who refrained from the authorized refutation 9.e5.
In the Finnish magazine "Suomen Shakki" Master Ojanen made an investigation of the possibility of 8...Nbd7. In what follows Ojanen's analysis has been widely used.

Appendix II

A summary of Shaposhnikov's and Judovich jr.'s article in "Shakhmatnij Bjulletin", 1958, p.5.

See diagram no.9o4, p.361, and comment, alt.1c, p.362.

The idea in this interesting variation is to transfer the QR to e7 to pile up pressure against White's center. But the exact sequence of moves is important: if Black plays Ra8-a7-e7 without the preparatory 9...Re8 lo.Nd2 (or 9...a6 lo.a4 Re8 ll.Nd2) then White plays Bf4 and Nf3-d2-c4 attacking d6.

In Smislov-Ragozin (see p. 3oo) Black played 9...a6 lo.a4 b6!? ll.Bf4 Ra7 l2.Nd2 Re7 l3.Bf3, and in view of the threat of Nc4 Black was forced to play l3...Ne8 14.Nc4 Qc7. Now White played the thematic 15.e5, but after 15...de 16.d6 Nd6 17.Nd5 Black sacrificed the Q and obtained sufficient compensation after 17...Nc4 18.Nc7 Rc7. Stronger is 15.Bg3 or 15.Rel, containing Black's counterplay and retaining the threat e4-e5.

If White, however, in answer to 9...Re8 continues lo.Qc2 (instead of lo.Nd2) then the idea of doubling the Rs in the e-file turns out to be inadequate: lo...a6 ll.a4 b6 l2.Bf4 Ra7 l3.Nd2 Rae7 14. Bf3 Ø Nc4. Consequently this idea (Ra8-a7-e7) is adopted only after 9...Re8 lo.Nd2. It enables Black to organize pressure against e4 and obtain fair tactical chances, utilizing White's difficulties in developing the Q-side forces.

After lo...a6 ll.a4 b6 l2.f4 Ra7 l3.Bf3 Rae7 we have reached a position which is important for the evaluation of the entire variation: (927):

x) l4.Nc4 Ne4 15.Ne4 Re4 l6.Be4 Re4 17.Qb3 (17.Ne3? Bd4 18.Qf3 Qe8 19.Rel Bb7 =+, Aratovskij) 17...Bg4 (928):
